

the DREAMHOUSE

Beach Trip

A beautiful sunny day. Crashing waves. Cleansing breaths of salty air... We had the awesome opportunity of taking four young ladies (and one baby boy) to the beach for the day. The waves were especially strong that day, but they were brave and determined to swim in the ocean and didn't mind when they knocked them over. They also spent a lot of time searching for shells. While Anthony helped one determined lady fill her bucket full of shells, Shannon taught another how to play paddle ball and she turned out to be quite good! It was a long drive down there but so worth it! "That was so amazing." One of the ladies said, as we dropped her off at the end of the adventure. Our favorite thing at the Dream House is connecting in a special way as we make amazing memories that will last forever, and showing them that there is good and fun to be had in this world!

They Will Rise

In the book Attached at the Heart authors Barbara Nicholson and Lysa Parker report, "Research has found that the presence of caring, supportive, and stable relationships can buffer, and, at times, reverse the effects of adversity. It's important to understand that childhood adversity does not have to define our destiny. Often, it doesn't mean a supportive person has to be involved in one's life on a daily basis but the existence of someone who validates your needs, who shows care and compassion, can be the one thing that can provide the necessary strength to rise above adverse circumstances later in life."

*At the Dream House, we want to be that presence. We want to exist in that place of need with care and compassion. We want to lead them to the One who defines their destiny. They Will Rise!

Shannon had the special opportunity to take Kimberly to one of the women's events with our church. They were doing baptisms that evening and Kimberly accepted the invitation! Special thanks to all the ladies that came around her that evening and spoke words of Life over her! What an honor to witness this special moment!
